The Joint Base Langley-Eustis Airman and Family Readiness Center's (AFRC) core function is linking individuals and families with the right resource to meet their specific needs. The AFRC is available for all active duty members and their families, DoD Civilians, Guard Reserve, military retirees and their eligible family members. Programs offered at the Center include:

- Information & Referral Program provides telephone and in-person assessments to help you determine your needs and the right resource. You may be referred to a center program or to another organization either on or off base. An extensive list of available services is maintained with phone numbers, addresses and information on services provided. If you are unsure of where to turn, call us and we'll point you in the right direction.

- Personal, Work and Family Life Program offer individuals assistance and workshops designed to promote healthy, stable relationships and marriages among military personnel.
- Relocation Assistance Program helps single and married Air Force members and their families prepare for relocation to a new base, and adjust to life at the new base once they arrive.
- Individual and Family Readiness Program provides information to increase individual and family readiness and support before, during and after TDY, remote assignment and deployment separations.
