The Marshall Center of the Richmond Behavioral Health Authority operates a psychiatric rehabilitation program in the community at the Marshall Center. Services are intended to enable individuals to form positive social relationships, learn about recovery from mental illness, access community resources, engage in pre-vocational training, and increase self-esteem through a range of successful experiences.

The Marshall Center provides structured, recovery-based programming in areas of:

- Education and Skill-building activities addressing illness management,
- Medication management and relapse prevention,
- Impact of co-occurring substance abuse,
- Primary medical health issues, nutrition, and overall physical health,
- Socialization and interpersonal relationships,
- Pre-vocational training and employment support,
- Crisis intervention services,
- Interpreters available upon request.
