Riverside Eastern Shore Hospice believes that when time is of the essence, quality of life is essential. Trained Hospice care providers can help reduce the distraction of managing pain or medications so you can focus on what's important: time together. In the comfort of home, you and your loved ones will receive physical, emotional, social and spiritual care during your journey.

Family members, care givers and significant others play a vital role in the Hospice process, and Riverside Eastern Shore Hospice offers just as much care and support to these individuals as to the patient. Throughout the course of your loved one's illness, Hospice provides resources to help you manage your role as a care giver and the physical and emotional effects it can take on your life. Our care surrounds grieving families and loved ones with compassion and understanding. Ongoing grief and bereavement counseling services are available at Hospice locations.
