Though there is no cure for Alzheimer's disease and dementia, physical rehabilitation treatments are used to help improve the quality of life. Our physical therapists help improve functional mobility and strength, manage pain, and improve overall health. Our occupational therapist help to improve the activities of daily living and improve the quality of life while our speech therapists are on hand to help with any speech or swallowing problems that may be occurring. We are here to help your loved ones during this challenging moment in life.
